

ANOTHER WEEK FOR STATE LEGISLATURE

STATE LAW-MAKERS WILL RETURN TO WORK TOMORROW DETERMINED TO FINISH WITHIN A WEEK.

WORK TO BE RUSHED

Appropriations, Apportionment and Income Tax Bills May Cause Deadlocks Which Will Mean Extended Delays.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., June 19.—With desks cleared for action of everything save their files of bills and envelopes, and with votes and wits in full trim, members of the Wisconsin legislature will come back tomorrow for what they hope will be the last week of the legislative session. Another week will be necessary for the perfunctory reception of reports from the committee on engrossed and enrolled bills and for communications from the governor, but unless unexpected votes should come from the chief executive, the last week of this month will witness a session in which a bare dozen members will take part in each house. There is still a possibility that contests over one or two big measures, notably the appropriations, apportionment and income tax bills, may precipitate a temporary deadlock that will further prolong the "agonies," but this possibility seems remote. The assembly has pending only a few of its own bills, but there are something like fifty senate measures left from the past week and as many more which were messaged over later. The senate has less business to attend to, but amendment by the assembly of quite a number of senate propositions will have to be taken up, and here again is a possibility of delay. The practice of refusing to agree on amendments has prevailed quite generally of late, and many committees on conference have been named. This is likely to be the case with quite a number of senate bills.

Prominent among the measures that may be conducive to delay in the joint finance committee's bill of appropriations for the university. The total amount proposed by the committee is $2,123,185, of which all but the $1,000,000, which is estimated the three-fifths mill tax will bring in, is in direct appropriations. It is the failure of the committee to provide specifically instead of by mill tax, that has provided the opponents of the measure with their best ammunition. The committee's own report reported in favor of specific appropriations as one of the causes for chaotic conditions with respect to the state's finances, and a strong effort will be made to change the mill tax proposed by the committee to a direct appropriation. In past years such taxes have not been reckoned as "state taxes," and frequently much has been made, in a political way, of the fact that there was no necessity for a state tax, when the university and common school fund taxes were levied in the usual manner. There are many supporters of the plan to make all appropriations specific, and then allow the administration and the tax commission to fix the necessary rate after the annual assessment has been made. Many of the appropriation bills pending, as well as those already passed contain simply the provision: "A sum necessary to carry out the provisions of this act, out of the moneys in the state treasury, or otherwise appropriated, is hereby," etc., etc.

Of less importance only than the matter of direct appropriations are the items in the bills. There is wide difference of opinion among the members as to the propriety of the various sums named in the bill, and especially as to the $87,500 for 1912, and $100,000 for 1913, not apart for the extension department of the state university. It was fully expected that this department would get at least $100,000 for both fiscal years, if not $150,000. This feature of the university's work directly affects the farmers and "common" people, and a substantial enlargement of this sum is quite likely to be accomplished before the bill has finished running the gauntlet. There is no question but that the rural members would like to see the $40,000 a year for two years for the extension department of the agricultural college increased.

The proposition to provide $47,000 to purchase additional lands to the west of the university on Lake Mendota, which has not yet been finally passed upon by the finance committee, also is in jeopardy, and this sum may be added to the amount given for extension. It is proposed to purchase the land now when it can be purchased for a comparatively reasonable price, even though it will not be needed immediately, but it is doubtful if the item will get by the lower house, even if the senate approves it.

There also is talk of attempting to change the $150,000 provided for another women's dormitory to provide for a men's dormitory instead. There is a feeling among many members that the state should begin to provide for the men what the coeds already have in the shape of two such buildings. It is even likely that both may be provided, and something out from the $300,000 for 1912 and 1913, allowed for improvements and other new buildings. Out of this item, the bill requires that $50,000 be used each year for books and equipment. There still remains $200,000 in the building fund for the fiscal year 1912, out of the appropriation by the last legislature.

A strong fight also will be made for the original $200,000 a year asked for the normal school regents, which is cut down in the bill to $150,000. Unless an increase is secured, it is not likely that the proposed building and equipment of the Janesville school will be possible during the next two years.

There is considerable speculation as to whether the legislature will adjourn on June 20, or whether it will continue on June 21.

WANTS EXPOSURE OF SCHOOL BOOK GRAFT BY INVESTIGATION

Assemblyman Mahon Will Look Into Alleged Rottenness On Part of Publishing Houses of State.

Madison, Wis., June 19.—An investigation, widespread in its application, and promising results of amazing interest to every citizen of the state, is contemplated in the inquiry proposed in the joint resolution introduced last week by Assemblyman Thomas J. Mahon of Shawano county, which will be taken up in the assembly this week. In view of the defeat of his bill for a uniform textbook adoption, under the auspices of an official state commission, Mr. Mahon believes the subject demands the fullest kind of investigation.

Inasmuch as the bill was designed to curb the alleged improper practices of the so-called "book trust" agents, this supposed evil will occupy a prominent position under fire. Besides, the various ramifications of the influence of the publishing houses will be gone into without fear or favor. On the other hand, in order to clear away any doubts as to the motives of many supporters of the uniform textbook plan, Mr. Mahon believes that the proposed committee also should go deeply into this phase of the matter.

"It was charged on the floor that the uniformity bill represented a fight between book publishing houses, and if this is true, for one, would like to see the truth made known," said Mr. Mahon today. "If the schoolbook proposition in this state is rotten, every bit of the rottenness should be exposed, without prejudice, and with no care for whom it may hit. I firmly believe that no subject merits so deep an investigation as this matter of school textbooks and how it affects the school system of the state. If the bill proposed by me possesses flaws, nothing will point them out so quickly as a legislative probe, and the result will be a bill that is as near faultless as the human brain can devise."

"My purpose in proposing this investigation is not one of revenge. I believe every man who voted against the bill did so from an honest conviction that the system proposed was wrong. Therefore the best way to pick the scab from the chief, to find out what evils exist, and then to propose legislation that will cure these evils, is for a vigorous, competent legislative committee, with practically all the powers of a grand jury, to look into the subject from every angle."

PUBLISHED LETTER CAUSE FOR COMMENT

Assistant State Fire Marshal's Letter Regarding Recent Fires in State To Insurance Companies.

Madison, Wis., June 19.—Wide-spread comment has been aroused by the publication in insurance and eastern financial journals of a copy of a letter written by James M. Sexton, assistant state fire marshal of Wisconsin, to the insurance companies throughout the country offering to furnish to those companies information regarding the persons whose fires have come under the espionage of the department because of their suspicious character. Several members of the legislature have received letters, some of them expressing no little indignation at the fact that a state department should be conducting a system of reports of a confidential nature for a consideration, without authority of law. In fact, it is not unlikely that the legislature will take cognizance of the situation in the form of a resolution for an investigation or a bill which will regulate the proposed practice.

Mr. Sexton sets forth in his letter that the reports he has in mind would be as to persons who have had several fires, at least one of which was of a suspicious nature, second, as to those whose "first fires" under conditions which might be investigated, and third, the "first fire" men whose congratulations unquestionably were of a suspicious character. There is nothing in the letter to indicate that the reports would have to do only with persons who actually had been convicted of arson or complicity in that offense. In other words, the name of practically every person who had been under investigation by the department, however innocently, would go to the insurance companies which paid for the information, and those persons presumably would be placed on the "blacklist" of those companies.

Mr. Sexton's letter says: "There are two obstacles in the way of this work being done by this department, the first being that it would necessitate considerable expense which, under the present system of audit, would be impossible to have allowed. In addition to this, there is liability of criticism as to the department's association with the insurance companies. . . . I have now under consideration an arrangement by which this can be handled outside of the department at a fee of possibly $10 a year. . . . The letter goes on to state that Mr. Sexton would give the work his "personal supervision."

With several hundred fire insurance companies operating in this state, an information bureau of this sort therefore would prove quite a profitable sideline for anyone who possessed the necessary data and the time to put it in circulation.

DANGEROUS FIRE IN THE AMERICAN HOTEL

ROOKERY ON EAST MILWAUKEE STREET TOOK FIRE EARLY SUNDAY MORNING.

LOSS IS ABOUT $1,000

Flames Which Gained Great Headway in the Combustible Material of the Structure Put Out by Efforts of Fire Departments.

What threatened to be one of the most dangerous fires in this city for some time was extinguished by the local fire departments in the American hotel block on East Milwaukee street shortly after twelve o'clock Sunday morning. The damage to the building through fire and water amounted to about $1,000 according to conservative estimates made this morning. The loss was fully covered by insurance.

BUILDING THREATENED BY FIRE EARLY SUNDAY MORNING.

Clock at extreme left of picture was the one damaged to the extent of $1,000 by fire and water. The brick walls are but eight inches thick and but for the quick and effective work of the fire departments the entire block would undoubtedly have been burned.

When the fire broke out from the roof and upper windows and immediately sent in the alarm.

When the departments arrived the flames had gained marked headway, on the easily combustible material of the interior of the structure furnished everything needed for a dangerous fire. The cause for the fire remains a mystery and there were only a few people in the building.

The fifty foot ladder of the department was hoisted after some difficulty with the wires in front of the fire. The fire had evidently started on the fourth floor as that was the first floor to be reached by the firemen.

Two leads of hose were taken up the rear of the place in readiness in case of emergency. The force of the three inch stream of water thrown by the big line of hose was most effective in extinguishing the flames and was powerful enough to break through partitions and doors. It was a very difficult place in which to fight flames on account of the many partitions and rooms in the building. Collections of rubbish in some of the vacant rooms also added to the difficulties of fighting. The work of the firemen was most effective, however, and after two hours' fighting the situation was well under control.

At one time, according to Chief Klein today, there was over fifty tons of water on the upper floors of the building and he was fearful that the frail structure might collapse, endangering the lives of the fire-fighters. On that account he saw to it that the floors were torn up in several places to allow the water to filter through to lower levels. Much of it dripped through to the first floor, causing considerable damage in the Carl Helso saloon.

There were three roomers on the fourth floor who were asleep when the department arrived and it required considerable work to drive them to the fire escape as they were dazed by the smoke and noise. They had not been awakened at the time they were there would have been in extreme danger.

The structure, which is owned by Kreutz Brothers, is one of the oldest buildings in town and is said to have been erected nearly sixty years ago. It was generally considered as a tinder box and many have remarked that if a fire started in it there would be no chance of extinguishing it. It was due to the thorough work of the firemen and to the excellent appliances of the departments that the fire was placed under control in so short a time with so little damage.

Had the flames gained much headway they would have endangered property and as there are a number of frame structures in the rear it would have been a most formidable conflagration. Chief Klein today expressed his gratification with the manner in which the blaze was brought under control and stated that it was one of the hardest fires to fight that had been encountered for some time. He was pleased with the work of the appliances, and said the long ladder and the three-inch nozzle hose were almost indispensable.

It was rumored that one of the lodgers claimed that he had lost some money in the scramble to escape from the flames, but some were doubtful as to the veracity of the statement. The roomers were mostly foreigners.

The work of adjusting the loss and investigating the place for the cause was taken up today but the reason for the fire still remains a mystery.

MYSTERIOUS FIRE AT LAKE GENEVA HOME

Libbey Home Partially Destroyed On Tuesday, June the 13th.

Great damage was incurred at the home of Mr. Libbey, near Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, through a mysterious fire. At about midnight, Tuesday, June 13th, Mr. Libbey was awakened from his slumbers by a bright light shining in at his window. He arose and found all the barn in flames and the fire so far progressed that they were about to fall. An effort was made to save the live stock, but it was unsuccessful. However, the house was saved with all it contains.

The loss although partially covered by insurance, was very heavy. The fire extended from the barn to all the out-buildings, including the grain-bin and grain. Four valuable horses, a registered bull and four calves were all burned in the fire.

The cause of the fire is as yet unknown, although efforts are being made to locate the source. The many friends of the unfortunate family are sending their sympathies and help in their time of loss and affliction.

SERMON TO MILTON GRADUATES SUNDAY

President William C. Daland Preached Baccalaureate Sermon Yesterday—Member of Graduating Class Marries.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milton, June 18.—The baccalaureate sermon at Milton college was preached in the Seventh-day Baptist church at Milton, Sunday evening, June 18th, by President William C. Daland. He took for his text, John 8:12: "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." The theme was, "The Man of Today."

By this expression President Daland characterized the man who is freest to act in view of the conditions that prevail in the civilization of the present time. Knowing of the present age is essential to the highest freedom. Law was presented not as restraining liberty, but as conducing to the most real freedom. The free man of today must also be a religious man, for our civilization is essentially an approach to the far-off divine event towards which we must all feel devoutly reverent.

President Daland urged the graduating class to be open-minded towards truth, to be submissive to the law of social interaction, and to be reverent towards religion.

College Graduate Weds.

At the close of the morning service at the S. D. church, Saturday, June 17th, a wedding march was heard by the audience, and Mr. William Murray Simpson was seen going down the aisle with Miss Amelia Richardson on his arm. They met Pastor Randolph and President Daland at the altar in a very impressive manner. The pastor united the young couple. President Daland offered prayer. Then the benediction was pronounced, and the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Simpson offered congratulations. Mr. Simpson is a member of the class of '11 in Milton college and his bride has also been a student. They will reside at Alfred, N. Y., where Mr. Simpson enters Alfred Theological Seminary in the fall. The best wishes of their many friends go with them to their new home.

JANESVILLE WON BY CLOSE SCORE OVER ROCKFORD SUNDAY

City Team Beat Athletics of Forest City in Air-Tight Contest at Fair Grounds, 2 to 1.

In a contest that was almost airtight and full of spectacular work by the athletes on both teams, the Janesville city nine yesterday afternoon won from the Athletics of Rockford, in a game at the fair grounds, by a 2 to 1 score. It was the finest exhibition of the national game which the local fans have had the opportunity of seeing at home and the crowd went wild with enthusiasm. Smith, pitcher for Janesville, allowed only one hit, Kowish, last man at bat for Rockford, in the game being the only batter for the Forest City to connect with the ball. Thurlwell, on the rubber for Rockford, was in good form, also, but six hits were made on him. Janesville scores were made in the eighth inning after two batters had gone down. Markle, on one to Schrum, Croton reached first on Hendricks' error in holding a long fly and took second when Williams singled. Smith drove a long fly over third base, scoring Croton and Williams and ran all the way around the bases on a wild throw to Woodman, made by Snyder. He was sent back to third base by the umpire and died there, Miller being caught out at first, but brought in the runs that won for Janesville. Thurlwell was the only Rockford man to cross the bag at the plate. He was first up and went to first base on an error by Miller. Woodman sacrificed, advancing Thurlwell to second. Johnson went out on a short one to Smith, and Kowish singled, Thurlwell scoring. Kowish was caught trying to steal.

Both pitchers were given splendid support by their respective teams, which was largely responsible for the closeness of the score. Credit is due the pitchers, however, for allowing only short drives that were easily fielded. Smith struck out two men and four were fanned by Thurlwell.

Hanson Co. Won.

The Hanson Furniture company's team defeated the Gazette Printing company's nine at the fair grounds, Saturday afternoon, 17 to 12.

The types were in the lead up through the eighth inning, but finally errors lost the match for them. Comedy was a feature of the contest, one of the chief features being when one of the Hanson players, who was making a wild dash for third base, was coaxed back to second by a Gazette player.

Enright was the star of the Hanson aggregation with the stick and in fielding. The batteries: Hanson Co., Kressin and Schuler; Gazette, George Heise and Ward.

Stars Won.

Saturday afternoon the Fourth Ward Giants were scheduled to meet the 19 rates of the same ward, but the Giants, upon learning that the Pirates were on the warpath, decided not to make their appearance. As a result the game was forfeited to the Pirates.

The Pirates, when the Giants did not show up, looked up with the Fourth Ward Stars. These were a little too much for them to handle and at the end of the six innings, which they were scheduled to play, the Stars lead by the margin of one run. The Pirates' battery was Lineau, pitcher, and Williams, catcher. Brown and Condon lead the Stars on to the victory, backed up by Spohn.

FORT ATKINSON WAS BEATEN BY PARKERS

Local Team Made Five Runs Off Opponents and Held Fort To One Run Made On Error and Passed Ball.

Fort Atkinson city team went down to defeat yesterday before the Parker Pen players, 5 to 1, and Hollenbeck, caught on a pitching marvel, who could "wind 'em around your neck," did not prove such a mystery as was anticipated by the local nine. In fact it was a very puzzling game, it was by Parkers, who held Fort Atkinson down to two hits, one in the seventh and one in the ninth. Their only run was scored on an error and a passed ball by Hallen in the ninth. On the other hand the Janesville batters fell on Hollenbeck for twelve hits, one of which was a homer, made by Klinsky. Bunched hits in the fourth brought in four runs. The "mystery" was wild at times and hit three men.

C. A. C. WINS TROPHY RACE BY BIG MARGIN

Final Returns From Endurance Contest Shows Athletic Club Winner.

Motorists who competed in the annual interclub reliability team match of the Chicago Athletic association and the Chicago Automobile club to Janesville and return yesterday received the revised table of individual standings, on which the judges had worked for several hours following the finish of the run Friday night.

When the figures were gone over at the end of the run it was found the C. A. C. had won the third victory in the series of four matches, but the officials found so many points to be decided that it was impossible to leave the table of final standings until yesterday.

G. A. A. Margin Mounts.

The C. A. C. won by a large margin than first announced. Instead of having its team penalized 49,768 points, the Cherry Circle drew a fractional penalization of only 306,8 points, as against 685 for the Chicago Automobile club. Another discrepancy discovered was in the number of perfect scores turned in by the winners, ten being the count instead of nine.

The driver overlooked was W. E. Davis, who brought his Chalmers through the two days' run with a clean bill.

Originally Andrew Ortmyer of the C. A. C. team was penalized eight points. The judges later learned Ortmyer had been "pinched" for running his National Roadster through Molokai Park at a speed in excess of the village limit. Under the rules of the run an additional penalty of ten points was imposed, bringing Ortmyer's total to eighteen.

U. S. TO SAVE $9,000,000 YEARLY ON ITS MAILED

Hitchcock's Inquiry Shows Some Railroads Are Making Enormous Profits for Transportation.

Washington, June 19.—Postmaster General Hitchcock announced that his investigation into the cost of railway mail service had progressed far enough to show that a saving of about $9,000,000 can be made to the government without doing injustice to the railways. While many of the railways are carrying the mails at a large profit others are furnishing the service at a loss. Of the 394 companies reported on 278 are making profits.

A saving of about $9,000,000 can be effected without doing injustice to the transportation companies, Postmaster General Hitchcock stated following an investigation.

The inquiry brings out the fact that of the 394 companies reported on, 278 are making profits from mail transportation while 116 are incurring losses. The rate of profit and loss varies widely with different companies.

The investigation, which has involved a vast amount of work, was instituted by Mr. Hitchcock under authority granted by an old statute that had never been effectively in force.

The railways were never before required to disclose the cost of carrying passengers and express as well as the mails.

In readjusting the compensation of railways for mail transportation in conformity with the conditions shown by the inquiry it will be necessary to increase the pay of certain lines that are now carrying the mails at a loss while reducing the compensation of the systems that are making unreasonable profits from this service.

Making such a readjustment on a basis of six per cent. profit in all railways carrying the mails it will be possible to save the government approximately $9,000,000 a year.

Congress will be asked to authorize a readjustment.

This will have the way still further for the introduction of one cent letter postage which, according to Postmaster General Hitchcock can be accomplished without a postal deficit just as soon as the postage rate on second class mail is properly adjusted.

BERMON PRECEDES BALL GAME.

Bleacherites and Grand Stand Throng Join in Singing of Hymn.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 19.—The novel sight of a pulpit erected in front of a grand stand holding more than a thousand baseball fans was witnessed here when Rev. J. W. Larkin delivered a sermon preceding a game of ball, after which the men, women and children joined in the hymn, "There Were Ninety and Nine."

The sermon was advertised as a feature of the game between local teams and it attracted thousands. As Rev. Mr. Larkin stood in his pulpit, surrounded by the two baseball nines and facing the bleachers, a hush came over the vast assemblage.

He delivered a stirring sermon lasting 30 minutes, on practical religion to fit the needs of the masses. One minute after the clergyman had retired the umpire shouted "Play ball," and the game was on.

INDICTS BURNS AND AID ON KIDNAPING CHARGE

Grand Jury Returns True Bills Against Two Detectives—Also J. J. McNamara for Conspiracy.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 19.—John J. McNamara, secretary of the International Association of Structural Bridge and Iron Workers, was indicted by the Marion county grand jury for conspiracy to dynamite, Detective William J. Burns, who caused McNamara's arrest on charges of being implicated in explosions in Los Angeles, Cal., was indicted for kidnapping and conspiracy.

Three indictments are against McNamara, who is in jail in Los Angeles. One charges him with "conspiracy to dynamite industrial work of the Peoria and Pekin Union railroad at Peoria, Ill.," and the other two are said to be for storing dynamite in this city.

Five indictments are against Detective Burns, who is under $10,000 bail, and Detective Hensick of Los Angeles, who has not been arrested.

The grand jury reported that it found no evidence to sustain the charges of kidnapping against Walter Draw of New York, counsel for the National Erectors' association; J. A. G. Bader, Draw's assistant; W. J. Ford, assistant district attorney of Los Angeles county, Cal., and Frank P. Fox of this city, the chauffeur who drove the car in which McNamara was taken from this city to Chicago, all of whom were arrested here and held to the grand jury for investigation.

Governor Marshall, who honored the regulation for McNamara, "acted clearly within the law and did, in the premises, what he should have done," according to the grand jury's report.

City Judge Collins, before whom McNamara was taken, and the Indianapolis police officers connected with the case were absolved from blame or wrongdoing by the grand jury.

MAKES A NOSE OUT OF A RIB.

Surgeon Performs Remarkable Operation—Second of Kind in History.

Rock, N.Y., June 19.—A remarkable operation has just been completed in this city by Dr. J. Laro Robinson, formerly of Morgan Park, Ill.

A young woman was suffering from a disease of the nose, which had eaten away the bones. So unfavorable was her general condition that an operation was considered extremely dangerous, but Doctor Robinson undertook it. A channel was chiseled for reception of new osseous matter. One of the patient's ribs was bleached and parts of it were used in place of the nasal bones.

The healing process has been completed and the nose is perfectly restored.

The only other case on record of similar nature was performed in New York city and pronounced by the surgical world as a marvel.

Washington, June 19.—Attorney General Wickersham has furnished the house committee which is investigating the work of the department of justice a list of the special attorneys employed between March 5, 1909, and May 31, 1911, under authority of a special appropriation for the enforcement of the Sherman anti-trust act of 1890. The report shows the amount so expended was $845,184.66, representing the fees and expenses of 158 individuals, the great majority of whom received comparatively small remuneration for their work.

Rock, N.Y., June 19.—A remarkable operation has just been completed in this city by Dr. J. Laro Robinson, formerly of Morgan Park, Ill.

A young woman was suffering from a disease of the nose, which had eaten away the bones. So unfavorable was her general condition that an operation was considered extremely dangerous, but Doctor Robinson undertook it. A channel was chiseled for reception of new osseous matter. One of the patient's ribs was bleached and parts of it were used in place of the nasal bones.

The healing process has been completed and the nose is perfectly restored.

The only other case on record of similar nature was performed in New York city and pronounced by the surgical world as a marvel.

The report shows the amount so expended was $845,184.66, representing the fees and expenses of 158 individuals, the great majority of whom received comparatively small remuneration for their work.

The work of the collectors for the Subscription Department to "The Gazette" can be very greatly assisted if the patrons of the paper will have their payments ready at the time the collector calls. Most of our friends have assisted nicely in this connection and their promptness is appreciated. With several hundred calls to make each month, it is no small task and where it is necessary to make several return calls, the work is greatly increased. The collectors make the rounds of the city on the following dates, or near those dates:

EAGLES DECIDE TO SEEK CONVENTION

INSTRUCT DELEGATES TO INVITE NEW YEAR'S GATHERING TO MEET IN JANEVILLE.

DRILL TEAM IS TO GO

Delegates Leave Tomorrow, Drill Team on Wednesday Morning—Stratonic Efforts to be Made.

At the special meeting of the Janesville Aerobics and Fraternities Association, held Sunday afternoon, the Aerobics decided to make a formal invitation to the coming gathering of the State Aerobics which meets at Marshfield, Wisconsin, Thursday and Friday of this week, to come to Janesville for their 1912 gathering.

It was also decided to send the drill team of sixteen men and Captain Hans Juelke to the convention as boosters and to take part in the parades. These with the five delegates and State Secretary John C. Nichols, will make a strong delegation of Janesville boosters who should lead the convention for this city.

The delegates, Hugh Joyce, Jr., Fred Schmitt, M. J. Mulquin, J. J. Cunningham, W. E. Poeschl, and Myers or Nichols leave tomorrow evening while the drill team leaves on Wednesday. The local delegates will be quartered at the Woodget hotel and are taking with them a supply of Janesville advertising material.

If Janesville succeeds in getting the convention it will be held here July 3rd, 4th and 5th of next year, which will mean another big celebration for this city following the one to be held this year. It would mean a revival of the Nonconformist, which among the leading features and would bring several thousand visitors to the city.

GEORGE W. WISE HAD PARALYTIC STROKE

Well Known Local Photographer Stricken At Summer Cottage At Lake Kegonsa Saturday Afternoon.

George W. Wise, a well known photographer of this city, suffered a stroke of paralysis on Saturday afternoon at half past five o'clock at his summer cottage on Lake Kegonsa. Mr. Wise went to the lake Saturday afternoon, apparently in the best of health, for a short outing. Soon after his arrival there he was stricken, the stroke paralyzing his whole right side and rendering him almost speechless. He has lost the power of speech, but it is thought that he will have control of his mind. The verdict of the doctors is that the stroke is only a light one, from which he will recover rapidly, but he may be subject to another attack, which may prove more severe. His condition this morning was reported about the same as yesterday with no change for the better.

SCORES HOMELESS BY FLOODS.

Hundreds of Buildings About Danville, Va., Are Damaged.

Danville, Va., June 10.—Subscriptions were started for the hundreds of people made homeless by a cyclonic wind and hail storm that swept this section late Saturday night.

The storm was a typical western cyclone, accompanied by an electrical display of unusual force. Hundreds of buildings were damaged, some totally destroyed by fire or wind. The storm extended for several miles along the coast, the heaviest damage being done in this city and at Seaford, Del., the latter place suffering a property loss estimated at $100,000.

QUICK INSTALLMENT ELEVATOR EQUIPMENT.

New Elevator Placed in Janesville Building in Record Time.

The Otis Elevator Company which now monopolizes the elevator business of the country has installed its latest improved electric passenger elevator in the Jackson building, the workmen commenced their work Saturday night at eight o'clock and finished this morning so that there was no inconvenience to the occupants of the building.

The engine used is the old one but the machinery is all new, with car safety and governor, automatic safety brakes, engine stop, slack cable stop, potential switch and an emergency switch in the car itself.

All the safety devices are independent of the operator in the car except the emergency switch and that can be used when all others fail, there are also safety fuses to prevent the passage of excess electric current to the elevator engine.

The car is practically "foot proof" and the improvement will add much to the comfort and convenience of the occupants of this well equipped office building. Janesville is very fortunate in its office buildings, the accommodations offered being superior to those obtainable in many much larger cities, and the owners of the Jackson building are always on the alert to give their tenants the best of service and to furnish them with all the comforts and conveniences which may be secured in a building used entirely for office purposes.

MILE AND A HALF OF WIRE FENCE IS NEEDED FOR PARK

Workmen Start Erecting the Big Fence About the Janesville Park Association Grounds.

Work began this morning putting the mile and a half of wire fencing about the grounds of the Janesville Park Association. The wire arrived today and five hundred posts needed are already on the grounds. The fence will be six feet high, of woven wire and will entirely enclose the grounds. The grand stand has been rebuilt and will now seat fourteen hundred persons where a view of the entire grounds can be had. The ball diamond has been situated and put into good shape and the work of the half mile track is progressing nicely. The rains of the past week put the soil into excellent shape and it is expected that one of the fastest tracks in the country will be secured. Horace men who visited the grounds yesterday stated that the new track was already almost hard enough to drive on and that without work being half done on it, Secretary Putnam is arranging for a race meet some time in August and later in the fall the automobile and motor cycle race will be held. Plans for both these events are still only paper talk, but it is expected that they will be most successful. The grounds will be used during the coming military encampment as a camp ground for the regular troops and also as the scene of the grand military parade and drill on the afternoon of the fourth. Men have been at work for several days cutting the grass and digging out the weeds and the park will present a very pleasing view when all changes contemplated are completed.

COUNTRY RESIDENTS TAKEN INTO COURT

Four Farm Hands And One Ex-farmer Included in List of Drunks in Municipal Court.

Farm laborers, who came to town on Saturday to celebrate and carried the celebration beyond a reasonable limit, composed two-thirds of the squad of prisoners brought into municipal court this morning for drunkenness. There were four of the tollers of the soil, one ex-farmer and an "old offender." The old offender, William Gavney, told a hard luck tale and asked to be allowed to leave town as he intended to go immediately. His petition was granted, the case being adjourned two days, and he was given until twelve o'clock to leave the city. Gavney, accordingly, went to get some clothes. The court warned Gavney that unless immediate departure was taken from the city, the sentence would likely be for six months.

Various qualities of beer brought in Janesville were told of by the prisoners this morning. Elmer Fritz, former traveling salesman and at present employed as a farm hand, told the court that he had drunk but two bottles when "invited by the chief to take a ride." The chief, however, averred that the man staggered considerably for a "two-bottle" job. A fine of $2 and costs or $3 was fixed, which Fritz paid.

With regard to the size of the glasses of the brew that made Milwaukee famous, Martin Starlock, another chauffeur of the plow, testified in court that he had drunk only one glass. Starlock, who said he is a Bohemian, pretended not to understand the charge but later changed his mind. He pleaded guilty after Chief Appleby had sworn to the charges but sentence was suspended and Starlock was ordered to leave town immediately.

The cheerfullest man of the group was Pat Mulcurnia who, when the charge was read to him and he was asked what he wished to plead, said: "Guilty, Your Honor, although I wasn't drunk." He seemed to take it lightly and laughed and joked in court. He was allowed to go, as he said he had work in the country and promised to send the money for a fine of $2 and costs, or $3.

Ed. Hirkland, farm hand, made arrangements to pay a fine of $2 and costs, thus escaping a seven day sentence in jail. Thomas Christianman, ex-farmer, took the pledge for a year and his case was adjourned two months, the judge putting him on probation.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR THE HOSPITAL

GROUND WILL BE BROKEN WITHIN A FEW DAYS FOR NEW STRUCTURE.

Workmen Start Erecting the Big Fence About the Janesville Park Association Grounds.

It is expected that during the next few days ground will be broken for a new Mercy hospital to be constructed just north of the present structure. It will be most modern throughout, three stories high, with a basement on the level of the ground. It will have accommodations for sixty patients and will be equipped with three operating rooms. The present hospital building will be used as a home for the nurses, when the new building is finished. The building will be constructed of pressed brick, fireproof throughout, steam-heated, and with all modern conveniences. Its cost will be between forty and fifty thousand dollars complete and it will be one of the most modern and up-to-date hospital structures in the country. With this additional room and the old building used for the nurses' home it will make a complete hospital.

While work will be commenced at once it is not probable that it will be more than under cover by the time snow falls and will be completed early in the winter so as to be available for use. The Sisters in charge invite the hearty co-operation of the citizens generally in the work of building and should receive it.

Number "30" Under Ban.

A curious reminiscence of the treason of Judas survives in Belgium. Among the fisher folk of Blankenborgh and other parts the number of 30 is banned. When bringing down the price of their wares in order to tempt purchasers, they always pass from 31 sous to 29 sous, and in the same way they refuse to give 30 sous for any purchase, preferring to pay an extra sou, if they cannot succeed in abating the price asked.

Extensive Use of Potash.

Potash enters into the making of glass, soap, bleaches, dyes, photographic chemicals, medicine, explosives, fertilizer and is used in gold mining and many other industrial processes.

HOPE TO COMPLETE WORK OF SESSION WITHIN THE WEEK

to the probable fate of the income tax bill, which was passed by the senate with a referendum clause tacked on at the last minute to save the measure from defeat. Several assembly leaders are opposed to the referendum, on the ground that the actual passage of such a law by the legislature is one of the important republican platform pledges, and an attempt may be made to reject the referendum amendment. If this is not accomplished, there will be an effort to put back the exemption to which they were before the senate by a close vote amended this provision. This would make the exemption for a single man $500 instead of $1,000 a year. An attempt also may be made to strike out the clause exempting money and credits, which was placed in the bill originally when it was hoped that it could be passed without a referendum clause. It is therefore quite likely that the measure will go to a conference before it is passed.

The apportionment bills will cause a little hurry, and perhaps a little race between parties before those measures are passed. The fight will all be centered upon districts in which there are several counties and on counties in which there is more than one district. In the large districts the groupings of counties will cause most of the squabbles, as those will be fixed, if possible, in a manner that will preserve the republican majority. The senatorial apportionment, however, is the hardest nut to crack, and this measure is still in the hands of the committee.

The traveler through Sixony is rarely out of sight of a factory chimney. In probably no other land are industrial establishments so numerous in proportion to the area. The Evening Chit-Chat

"TAKE heed of thy friends. Nothing doth countervail a faithful friend and his excellency is invaluable."—Proverbs.

Make friends.

Wherever you go, whatever you are doing, don't neglect to make all the friends you possibly can.

If I were asked to give a young man or woman starting out in the world just one piece of advice as to how to be successful, I think it would be that.

Say to yourself that you will try to make every man and woman you meet your friend.

Of course I don't mean make them intimate friends, merely make them feel friendly towards you.

Never mind how humble or how uninteresting or how cross-grained they may be. Never mind how unlikely it seems that you will ever meet them again.

The lion of Aesop fame never expected to meet the mouse again, and most certainly didn't think that the creature could ever be of service to his own royal highness, and yet he took the pains to do the mouse a favor and make a friend of him, and all the world now knows how—some time after the lion was caught in a net laid by some hunters; and, unable to free himself, made the mouse his friend.

The mouse whose life had been spared came, and with his little sharp teeth gnawed the ropes number and set the lion free.

A big business man who has made a really tremendous international success from very small beginnings, said to me the other day: "I think I owe my success most of all to something my mother continually impressed upon me—and that was to be courteous to everyone I met. That habit made friends for me. Friends made opportunities and I made good."

How many men could say the same thing? Look back over your own life, you who are successful, and I'm sure you'll admit that nine times out of ten when opportunity knocked at your door it was some friend who showed her way thither.

I know that this is a utilitarian view of friendship which might offend some, but you see I am taking that point of view today deliberately because that's what I'm trying to show, the utilitarian value of going through life making friends.

Everyone knows the moral and spiritual value of friendship and the comeliness and fitness of courtesy, but not every one stops to realize what a wonderful lubricant for the wheels of success is this habit of making all the people you can feel friendly towards you.

Whatever the number of a man's friends there will still be times in his life when he has one too few; but if he has only one enemy he is lucky indeed if he has not one too many."—Hulwer-Lytton.

Some Women We Ought to Know

Juliana of Norwich and All Who Have Sought the Inner Life.

IT is pleasant in this practical age to see recognition given to those who seek the inner life. And this is what the Cathedral authorities at Liverpool have done in the window placed to the memory of Juliana of Norwich and All Who Have Sought the Inner Life.

Juliana of Norwich was born about 1342. In 1360, she was known to be living as a recluse at Conkford, near Norwich. And an old manuscript states she was "yet in life" in 1412. Much of her inner life of prayer and devotion is manifested in her book which has come down to us, entitled "Revelations of Divine Love," the manuscript of which is in the British Museum.

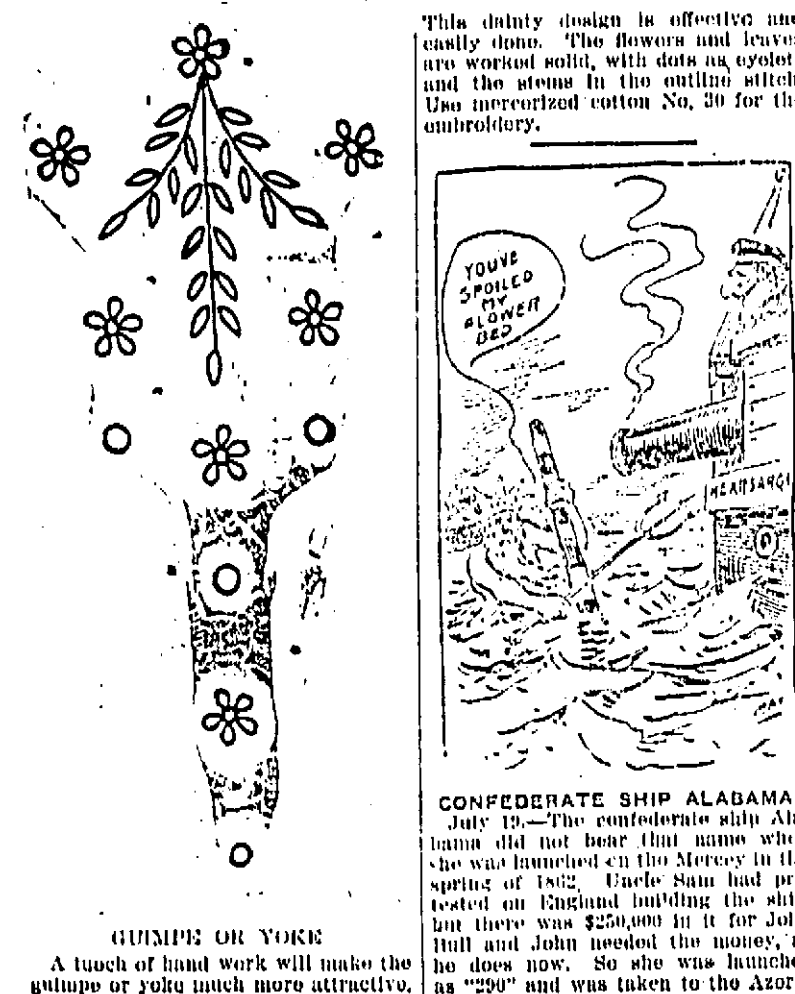

Very little is known of her outer life. She was thirty years old, when in May, 1373, the revelation came to her which she afterwards recorded in narrative form. The style of the book is very simple, but by no means lacking in literary skill, and her unaffected humility is not more pronounced than her simple desire to know the truth. She was essentially one of the happy saints, and her writings are full of love of God and man, while from the morbid emotionalism which disfigures the impressions of many mystics, she is entirely free.

Matter of fact people would look on such a life as wasted, but lives like these are as necessary to the world as the lives of great inventors, great merchants, great financiers. The world needs to know the truth as well as to build railroads or skyscrapers. The vision must go before the realization, the dream before the fulfillment; and it is the lives of the dreamers and of those who see visions, that are really the inspiration and the guide of the masses. They are the ones who really lift the world, though the awards are kept to go to those who show the practical achievements.

It was more customary in the olden days to live such a life as Juliana of Norwich than it is today, for as has been said, we are a practical people, and we want to see practical results of our living. We want houses and lands and bonds and bank accounts to demonstrate that we have mastered the business of living in this world. But for this very reason, those who live the inner life, those who see visions and dream dreams are really more needed than in less commercial times. And this window in recognizing and honoring such a life is noteworthy.

We should not, therefore, deary those who turn their face from the things of the world, those who find their joy in the inner life. They have their use and their value. And unless we have a nice balance of these, this world will grow to be a sordid, dreary place. But they make it beautiful with the things of the spirit, with the reflected glory of those visions they have of realms beyond.

FADS AND FASHIONS.

New York, June 17.—The weather is by no means suggestive of summer, but what do women care about chilly and dumpy winds, when they have some summer theory to show. There are plenty of opportunities to see some exceedingly handsome summer costumes on the streets and at the fashionable luncheon places. Many stray vessels, the had captured 61 ships and burned all but seven of them, when he sailed into the port of Cherbourg, France, and anchored to make repairs. Captain Winslow, of the United States ship Kearsarge, had been looking for Mr. Semmes for some time and also sailed into the harbor, but went outside without anchoring. Semmes took this as a del and he also went out. This was on June 19, 1864. The date is important, because like McHenry, the Alabama "is on the bottom yet." The Kearsarge shot her full of holes in exchange of compliments that followed and Semmes and his crew were rescued by a pleasure yacht that stood off to see the meeting. England paid the United States $15,000,000 for that bit of boat building.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Tea and coffee made hot over the fire before the water is added are more fragrant and stronger.

Wash eggs as they come from the market, and the shells may then be used to settle the coffee.

To keep lemons fresh, put them in a jar and cover them with cold water; in warm weather change the water twice a week.

Keep pieces of charcoal in the refrigerator.

A good fat for all kinds of shortening is butter and lard. Melt the butter and pour it off carefully, not to get any of the dregs; add to an equal quantity of lard. Use this for pastry cakes and in fact almost any dish where shortening is used.

To separate fats from soups and gravies, wet a cheese cloth in cold water, pour the soup of gravy through it, or wipe the soup carefully with the cloth wet in ice water.

In adding eggs to soups, sauces, etc., remember to add a few tablespoonsful of the hot liquid to the egg before adding to the large quantity of hot soup or sauce, as that often cooks the egg and makes a curdled mixture.

Chicken or turkey fat are nice to use in the place of butter as shortening or salad dressings.

To clean stained tea and coffee pots, add a teaspoonful of soda to a pint of water and boil for a half an hour. The pots will be as fresh as when new.

If troubled with ants, sprinkle a little tartar emetic around the places where they are seen to enter. This is a poison and should be used carefully, not forgetting to protect your pots.

To clean painted walls, dissolve two ounces of borax in two quarts of water and add a tablespoonful of ammonia. Use half of this quantity to each pint of water. Wash and wipe with a clean, dry cloth, a small piece of wall at a time.

DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN, Food Specialist

OLD IDEAS ON DIET FOR ATHLETES NOW DISCARDED.

"The question of diet is of first importance in the training of athletes," says the Medical Record, "and concerning this matter, widely divergent views have been expressed by various authorities. It is freely allowed that the opinions of old-time dictators on the best means of feeding those in training for the exertion of severe physical effort have been for the most part overturned. The diet in vogue in such cases 40 or 50 years ago would not meet with favor in these days."

There are many formidable athletes, nowadays, like, Eustace Miles, one of the best tennis players who has ever lived, who are rigid vegetarians. Reference has frequently been made in these hints to cases in which new records have been made by athletes who attribute their success largely to a simple diet, excluding flesh meat. It may be safely laid down as an established rule that the greater the variety and excess of food the greater the draft upon vitality for its digestion and elimination, and therefore the less left for work, physical or mental.

Great works of literature and of art generally have much more frequently come from the garret than the banquet hall.

New Way to Make Apple Dumplings

Served With Hard Sauce or Cream and Sugar

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Here is a new way to make apple dumplings that will surely please every housewife, for it is not necessary to have whole apples, and the juice cannot run out and burn as with apple dumplings where the apple is placed in the center and the dough laced up around it. The present plan forms a crispy shell that holds the apples and juice.

K C Apple Dumplings

One and one-half cups sifted flour; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; 1/4 cup shortening; about 1/2 cup milk; apples.

Put the cups of a buttered muffin pan with pared and sliced apples, sprinkle with salt and turn two or three tablespoonfuls of batter into each cup. Sift together, three times, the flour, salt and baking powder; work in the shortening, and mix to a soft dough with the milk. Drop the dough from a spoon with the apples in the cups, giving it a smooth exterior. Let bake about twenty-five minutes. Invert the pan on a large serving dish. Put a spoonful of hard sauce above the apple in each dumpling and finish with a grating of nutmeg.

This is one of the many new, delicious and appetizing recipes contained in the K C Cook's Book, which was published recently, containing the colored recipes packed in every 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder to the 14th of May, 1911. Be sure to get the 25-cent size—smaller cans do not contain Cook's Book certificates.

Such belts and bags in all the bright modish colors are offered in the shops, and women are buying them for wear with their white serges, white linens, etc., and of course for colored frocks with which they happen to be in tune. There are bright patent leather belts of various shapes and wide suede belts in many of the fashionable gay colors, as well as in lovely grays and browns.

The monomaniacal gloves in gray and in white need back with bright lining for dashes of vivid color and with the ultra chic, but will be used all are exceedingly good with certain costumes.

The beautiful deep tones of violet and purple are well liked as relieving color for white, pale pink, grays, buff and various other colorings and are sometimes used as freely as black and in much the same way.

Beards are losing their popularity through the summer because so many expensive head embroideries were bought in the spring and have to be utilized in some way.

As a decorative agent in trimming the indured suit there is nothing so effective as a black-and-white striped silk. It may be as wide as one inch, or as narrow as pin stripes, but it has a dash and charm all its own. Linen and serge suits have come under its sway.

For evening wear the draped wrap is most seen in all sorts of soft, supple materials. The wide fastening continues in vogue in these wraps, some fastening at the side just below the waist line and others as far down as the knees.

Small, black velvet buttons are used in abundance on sashes, jackets, collars, cuffs and revers. They ornament in straight lines and shoulders and sleeves, the bodices and skirts. The smaller they are the more desirable they are considered.

Lingerie hats are trimmed with frills of plaited lace, ribbon flowers or huge silk ones. Entire crowns of lace gathered around petals of a large flower to form the top are the pretty ideas on lingerie hats of the latest importations.

Wings are the favorite trimming on large white straw hats worn in Paris. They are placed high at the back or around the crown in a bandeau. Sometimes they face the hat, which is perfectly plain on top.

While the Princess style in bathing suits is still to be seen, all the newest costumes this season have belts like the frocks and many have high-waisted effects.

FARM MORTGAGES ARE NOT WIPED OUT YET

WISCONSIN REPORT IN WASHINGTON SHOWS AGRICULTURAL INDEBTEDNESS IS ON THE INCREASE.

FIGURES FOR 20 YEARS

Imperfect Returns Make Accurate Figures Impossible—Big Obligations Are Shown in Reports Made.

There is a widespread idea that farmers in the middle west are, as a class, worrying no longer about farm mortgages, and that farm indebtedness, so numerous two decades ago, have been in a large measure paid off as a result of the agricultural prosperity and high prices for grain. This impression is greatly exaggerated, at least in regard to the State of Wisconsin, by a census bulletin made public Saturday by Acting Director Falkner.

Whether the money has been needed for automobiles, improved implements or more expensive standards of living, Wisconsin farm mortgages are more in evidence now than ever. The bulletin discloses that the relative number of farm homes, or farms operated by their owners, which are mortgaged, has increased quite regularly since 1890. From 1890 to 1910 the number increased 21,887, or 39.6 per cent. During the same time the increase in the total number of farms in the state was 21 per cent. The total farm debt was more than doubled. In 1910 mortgage indebtedness was reported for 77,128 farms, though for a considerable number of these the amount of the debt was not stated. Of the total number (77,129) reporting debt, only 49,298 reported the amount of the debt together with the value of the farms.

In this connection it should be noted that in 1890 there were many imperfect mortgage reports. At that time the amount of mortgage debt for farms without full reports was estimated according to the percentages and averages obtained from those with complete reports. No such estimate is here made for 1910.

More Than Doubled.
During the twenty years (1890-1910) the average per farm of value, debt and owner's equity all more than doubled. This was an increase of about $3,100 in value, of $1,700 in debt and of $2,000 in the equity. The mortgage indebtedness was just one-third the value of the farms in 1890, while the proportion was 1 per cent greater in 1910.

Attention is called to the fact that nearly two-thirds of all the farms in Wisconsin are between 50 and 175 acres in size. A comparison of the distribution of farms by size groups discloses the fact that the greatest reduction in number from 1900 to 1910 was made in the "three to nine acre" group, though the greatest actual increase was in the "100 to 174 acres" group.

From 1900 to 1910 the number of farms increased 7,332. During the same period there was an increase of nearly 1,200,000 acres of farm land and an increase of more than 600,000 acres in improved land. The increases last mentioned were accompanied, however, by an increase of only two acres in the average size of farms. It should be noted that during the decade the percentage of increase in population was three times that in the number of farms and twice that in the acres.

Property Value Increased.

Farm property in that state, which includes land, buildings, implements, machinery and live stock (domestic animals, poultry and bees), has increased in value during the decade 74.1 per cent, or more than $600,000,000. This rate of increase is over twelve times that of farm acreage. The great increase in the total of farm property was chiefly due to the advance of $381,395,000 in the value of land. This increase was associated with an increase of over $134,000,000 in the value of farm buildings and nearly $86,000,000 in that of farm equipment, including implements, machinery and live stock.

The average value of a fully equipped farm in 1900 was slightly less than $4,800, while ten years later it was about $8,000. The average value of land rose from approximately $27 per acre in 1900 to over $43 in 1910 and was accompanied by other changes in the average value of farm implements and of domestic animals, poultry and bees, notably in that of horses and mules.

In 1910 the total wealth in the form of farm property was $1,113,013,000, of which 85 per cent was represented by land and buildings, 3.7 per cent by implements and machinery and 11.3 per cent by domestic animals, poultry and bees. The gain (74.1 per cent) in the total value from 1900 to 1910 was a greater relative increase than has taken place in any other decade since 1870, while the actual amount of gain ($600,000,000) more than double the greatest increase reported for any previous decade. Of the total increase during the past decade $515,484,000 represents the increase in the value of land and buildings, $23,720,000 the increase in implements and machinery and $122,809,000 the increase in domestic animals, poultry and bees.

With the closing of the deal on last Saturday, Mrs. Murdoch became the owner of a large apartment building in Kansas City, Missouri. Mrs. Murdoch considers herself very fortunate in securing this building at the comparatively small price of $35,000.

BARNUM AND BAILEY SHOW.

Arrangements have been completed for the two performances of the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth to be given in Janesville tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Year after year this great show has grown in size and scope. This year it is larger than ever before. In novelty in sensational features, in the number of its European and American artists, in the beauty and magnificence of its paraphernalia, in the completeness of its zoological display, in the thrilling realism of its hippodrome contests, and the character of its professional display, it is said to be without a rival. Victoria and Orin Davenport illustrating the highest type of fancy equestrianism; The Kentucky Paragon equestrian; John Davenport and his beautiful horses; Mae Davenport, Charles Siegler, Ella Braden, Fred Derrick, and whole companies of premier equestrians; the Flying Lamars, aerial artists; Gammon Trumbo, a wondrous exhibition of daring and dexterity; Cliff-Berzack's pony and donkey circus; the Carroll troupe of high wire experts; the Dollar troupe of Rialto acrobats; the Victoria queen of the golden cord; the Nonpolitan, aerial trapezists; the Vienna troupe, the world's most famous acrobats; a veritable flock of human birds. These are but a few of the great artists to be seen with this exhibition. In fact the aerial company of this circus comprises over four hundred performers, embracing the pick of the world's best riders, acrobats, aerialists, specialists, and a regiment of clowns. The trained animal sensations introduce three acts by three separate companies of elephant actors; Professor Du Fran's famous dog and monkey clowns; Frau Sandwina, the world's most perfect woman in a series of horrid feats; and the DeKorou troupe of human jugglers.

The Barnum & Bailey performance would not be complete without its sensational thriller; so this season the management have the newest terrifying invention, "Jupiter the Balloon Horse," a beautiful white stallion ridden by Miss Nettie Carroll, takes position on a platform which is attached to a balloon much as a basket would be attached. The balloon starts skyward at the highest point in the canvas dome, a battery of fireworks surrounding the platform is kindled, horse and rider are hidden in a fountain of fire, yet the beautiful horse never moves.

The great parade tomorrow morning is promised to be superior to any with which the public is familiar. The Barnum & Bailey management have prepared a program representing an outlay of $2,000,000, an absolute expenditure of the world's wonders, moving through our streets, free to all who take the trouble to look. Do not forget the little folks; see that they have a good place from which to witness the parade.

HORSE THIEF TAKEN AT JEFFERSON PARK ON SATURDAY LAST

Man Named Ed, Applin Who Stole Team From Goodman Livery Barn Captured Near Chicago Following Long Chase.

Following a chase of twenty-four hours of almost continuous driving through the country between Harvard, Ill., and Chicago, Ed. Applin, who stole a team of horses and light wagon from the Goodman livery barn Thursday afternoon, was taken at Jefferson Park Saturday afternoon about three o'clock.

On Thursday afternoon Applin secured the team and light wagon from the Goodman barn and stated that he would return in about two or three hours as he had only a short drive into the country. He did not return that night and the next day at noon Sheriff Ransom was notified.

A phone message from Chief Quinman of Bollett took Sheriff Ransom and Peter Goodman to Bollett Friday afternoon, and here the first thread was taken up. Chief Quinman in his rounds of the Bollett livery barns after information regarding the thief, met a man by the name of H. F. Seaver with whom Applin had stopped Thursday night. It seems that Applin, who had been employed as a plumber by the contracting firm of Dullman of Clinton, had been at work on Seaver's residence for about two weeks past. He had quit work Thursday morning and had returned to Clinton, where, it is said, he had had some trouble with his employer. Later in the day he came to Janesville where he secured the horses and wagon.

He evidently had the intention of going to Chicago with the team and on his way had stopped at Seaver's home some ten or twelve miles southeast of Bollett. Thursday afternoon about half past five o'clock, he had his supper there and stated that the team belonged to his father and that he wanted to sell one of the pair. He went on from the Seaver place in about an hour but which way he left was not noted by Mr. Seaver who was not suspicious of the man.

He understood, however, that he was on his way to Clinton. He remembered also that Applin had told him that he had a wife in Algonquin, Ill., which might be an important item in the officers' search.

Following the receipt of this information, Sheriff Ransom and Mr. Goodman, they left for Harvard where they secured an automobile and left on the excursion through the country south and east. Mr. Goodman spent some time previous to the auto trip telephoning to the different points nearby notifying the authorities and seeking a clue.

They left for Algonquin Friday night in the hope of finding a trace of him there as they thought he may have gone there to see his wife. Here they found that he had spent several hours during which time he had seen his wife and had told her not to ask questions regarding the horses. He left there Friday afternoon and a searching party arrived there late Friday night. They stayed there for several hours in a heavy rain reading and at daybreak Friday they arose ready to start on the chase. They were handicapped some time here by the fact that the Harvard auto driver refused to continue farther on account of the severe rain storm, and it was necessary to secure a machine from Elgin some twelve miles away.

The remainder of the time was spent by the party searching the roads between Algonquin and Jefferson Park for traces of the fugitive. Late Saturday morning the road to Chicago which the thief had taken, was discovered, and Sheriff Ransom and party headed for Jefferson Park.

Mr. Goodman in the meantime had been at Lee Plains where he had telephoned the authorities at the nearby towns to be on the watch for the man and had also notified the Chicago police. He was not in Jefferson Park at the time of the capture but Sheriff Ransom was there ahead of the thief.

AGREES TO SEPARATE.
Congressman Fornes of New York, has come to an amicable agreement with his wife.

New York.—Congressman Charles V. Fornes and his wife, Edna Olive Fornes, after eight years of marital troubles, came to an amicable agreement for separation, to be as effective as if they were legally separated by order of the court.

A substantial and, it is understood, very large settlement has been made by Mr. Fornes upon his wife. Congressman Fornes, who is 65 years old and considerably older than his wife, was acting mayor of New York when originally sued for absolute divorce, suit being brought in Vermont five years ago. The charge was desertion and non-support, but the case was discontinued, and developments hung fire until this year.

BRITZ & HEADQUARTERS

CHAPTER XII.

The Empty Apartment.

When Britz groped his way out of the soundest sleep he had known in many a year, it was in absolute ignorance of his whereabouts. He gasped desperately several times before he returned to anything like his normal breathing.

Stung with the peculiar taste of the smothering dark was a faint odor unlike anything in the headquarters men's experience.

It had a persistence all its own, and when he tried to persuade himself his sensory nerves had played a trick upon him, it wreathed into his nostrils with unmistakable individuality.

Britz needed no effort to rise to tell him he still was bound hand and foot, and in the first instant of his full awakening he realized the alien gag still held his speech in thrall. He hit the ball of his foot savagely, and strained his tongue until the roots ached in endeavor to force the gag out of his mouth. As well might he, helpless as to hands and feet as he was, have tried to shake off a gorilla's grip at his throat. Yet the seeming hopelessness of his plight did not disturb him greatly. He had been in worse places. It was a question of patience, perseverance and pluck, and when it came to virile qualities, the famous Central office man was abundantly and all-embracingly equipped.

He tested his bonds—gently at first, then vigorously, then with all his strength.

He was not a Sandow, but he had abundance of pliant and serviceable strength. After many minutes passed in vain efforts to free himself, he relaxed his body and limbs for a short but complete rest, meanwhile bending his mind to the task of determining where he was. The result of his mental endeavor was as fruitless as the other. All he knew at the end of it was that he lay on a bare floor in a room which, from the sound of his heels on the boards, he judged was small. That thought suggested to him a means of summoning help other than vocal.

He began drumming on the boards with his heels. It was a tiring work, for his ankles were held so close that, with his feet beating in alternation, he could not make much noise. To make a sound likely to carry far, he had to raise and lower his heels together—an achievement that sounds easy until one has tried doing it many times. With all his endurance he could not keep it up for many minutes at a stretch. In the intervals he strained his hearing for a response. None came.

Britz rolled over on his face. As his hands were tied behind his back, his chin rested on the floor, and he had little leverage by which to lift himself. Several times he tried to rise to his knees, only to slip and bruise his face on the hard floor. Those mishaps were painful, but not discouraging in a man of Britz' resolute nature. Again and again he made the attempt; again and again he failed, but at last, with a mighty heave that left him panting, he raised himself by a catapult movement and sat back on his heels, waiting to catch his breath.

It was a harder task to get on his feet. He could not do it in the middle of the floor. Slowly, carefully, he worked his way on his knees to the wall, against which he braced himself. Then, bit by bit, he bent his feet forward in a crouching position until his weight was on knees and toes. His progress was as painful as it was slow, for the silk scarf compelled his ankles to bend in unison. If at all, and even when he had bent his toes to the requisite point it was a great strain to keep them there.

The detective, after a brief pause to gather his strength, set his shoulders against the wall and threw all his force into a single, vigorous push. The movement almost threw him to the floor again, but he recovered his balance quickly and stood erect. For a few moments he was content to revel in the relaxation that was so welcome after his long continuance in a cramped and prostrate position. Then a second's forgetfulness, natural enough to one accustomed to his freedom of movement, almost undid the work of the last half hour. He tried to step away from the wall, oblivious to the scarf that bound his ankles, and pitched forward heavily. He did not fall to the floor, however, for something sharp and hard stopped him. He found himself wedged between a metallic framework and the wall. A venomous hiss and the contact of his bound hands with hot metal told him he had fallen on a steam radiator, and as the hissing sound increased he guessed the shock had broken the little safety valve close to the top of the curved pipes. If the detective's position had been perilous before it was extra hazardous now. He was gripped in the jaws formed by the radiator and the wall, and neither hands nor feet at liberty, it seemed next to impossible for him to free himself. He kicked and struggled furiously, the hiss of the steam constantly growing louder, and in his endeavor to escape, he bent forward until his face was scalded by the rushing steam. The pain of that involuntary recoil it caused culminated in a final effort that loosed the grip in which he was held and sent him staggering in a series of two-footed hops along the wall.

Tracing his shoulders once more against the wall, Britz began another series of vigorous attempts to break the silken scarves, or to slip out of them. Exerting all his strength, he strained alternately at wrist and ankle, and ground between his teeth the little ball of silk that blocked his voice. But it was all to no purpose. His captors knew their trade, and the clinging bands, while yielding, did not give at any point sufficiently to set the sleuth at liberty. Suddenly a thought, swift and keen as a saber flash, clove its way straight through his perplexity. That which imperiled his life should give him liberty. He sidled along the wall until he stood beside the radiator at the end away from the safety valve. Pressing against the edge of the metal the scarf that held his hands, he began swinging himself from side to side. The corrugated edge of the ornamental ironwork served as a saw, and although more than once the man gasped as clouds of steam whirled about his head, in fewer minutes than would seem probable the metallic edge gnawed its way through the silk, and the kerchief parted with abruptness that sent Britz reeling back against the wall and crashing headlong to the floor.

His hands were free! And as that welcome realization followed the jarring impact of his head against an angle of the baseboard, Lieutenant Britz laughed softly as with busy fingers he loosed the scarf about his ankles, snatched the gag from his mouth, and, with a single shake of his shoulders that ripped the links out of his cramped muscles, strode to the window and flung up the sash. One deep intake of good, cold air, then half a dozen more, and he felt as fit as if he had not been close to a distressing and altogether ignominious end. He gripped the sill and leaned far out, looking first downward, then all around in quest of a landmark. There were not many lights on that side of the building, but a faint gleam in the depths enabled him to judge that he was about at the tenth story, and that the building was in an unfrequented uptown street. Withdrawing his head he pressed the button of a pocket electric torch and explored the room. From the style of its finish it evidently was a section of an unoccupied apartment in a new and rather pretentious building, a room planned to be cut off from the rest of the suite, for it seemed to give directly on the hall and was separated from its neighbor by a fireproof door of massive steel. He seized the handle. It turned readily, but the door did not open. The same was true of the door between the room and the hall. He shook both doors with all his strength, but they had been locked too stoutly to yield. It was apparent the kidnappers had made him a prisoner in full knowledge of the likelihood he would be released speedily. That they had plotted his death was not certain, but it was unmistakable they had given themselves little, if any, concern in that respect. Britz thought of the possibilities of fire as he had lain bound on the floor, and an unpleasant sensation passed over him; but he hastened back to the window and examined the outside of the building with a view to escape in that direction. He did not expect to overtake his abductors quickly, nor was he even of a mind to devote the bulk of his time to that purpose. But he regarded the capture of his recent captors as an important side enterprise to the solution of the great diamond mystery, and habit made him eager to begin working without delay.

There was a fire escape on the floor whence he looked out—a thoroughly modern contrivance with flat steps, and a really serviceable handrail—but it did not run to the window at which he stood. However, Britz had more than one attribute of the lynx, and it did not tax his agility greatly to reach the balcony while still gripping the window frame securely, and, with one quick movement, to swing himself over the ladder rail. It was the work of a minute or two to run down the easy steps to the first floor above the street and, from that point, he had only a short drop to the sidewalk. He strode in a casual way to the front of the big apartment building, which looked toward the Hudson, and noting its location, quickened his pace, walking south until he came to a cab stand. He gave a chauffeur the number of the Swami's house, jumped into a taxicab and continued his course in a southerly direction, the driver in obedience to his instructions wheeling east at seventy-second street and turning into a series of two-footed hops along the wall.

CHAPTER XIII.

Interviewing the Swami.

While Britz was speeding southward in the taxicab two men were in the midst of animated discussion in the Swami's room. They were the scholar himself and his up-to-date friend, Prince Kananda. The prince had arrived in the gloom-enshrouded house only a few minutes before. He had uttered several short, sharp sentences big with interest that had stirred the Swami from the repose usual to the Oriental priest. It was evident that Kananda expected a responsive remark from his friend, and that the Swami, feeling the obligation, was weighing his words before utterance.

"Nothing of the slightest interest to us was found," said Kananda, evidently in repetition. He had seen a skeptical expression spread over the Swami's bronze face, and anticipated an inquiry.

"The search was thorough," asked the scholar.

"My dear old chap," said the Prince, "it is likely we would go to such extraordinary lengths without being most painstaking in that respect? A speck of diamond dust could not have escaped us."

A slow smile gleamed through the mask that comprised the scholar's features. Mook deference colored his manner as, taking the mouthpiece of the Oriental pipe from between his lips and tossing the tube over to the divan, he arose and paced the length of the room.

"Far be it from my servant, O Prince," he said with palpable sarcasm, "to question the method pursued by an illustrious personage; but, and he here returned to the easy familiarity of their ordinary intercourse, "since the search was made so thoroughly, since it was a climax to a deed so venturesome that it might have embroiled you even with such slow-witted persons as the policemen of the Western world, would it not have been well to have got the right man?"

"You mean—I?"

"I mean, your Royal Highness," said the priest with another touch of ironic homage, "that the man whom the brilliant Ali and his equally intelligent assistants seized so boldly in the park, and then spirited away with a skill hardly to be equaled by an Indian schoolboy, was not the person whom it was worth your distinguished while to search."

The Prince was dumfounded. He circled the table, fished in his pocket for a cigarette, rolled it abstractedly between his thumb and middle finger, lighted it, and then watched the insubstantial features of him whom for so many years he had called "master." "Is it possible?" he exclaimed at last. "And I leave my personal attention to the task, too!" "I instructed Ali explicitly, and I ordered him to see that the men who aided him should be among the shrewdest and most praiseworthy of our followers. All he had tracked the man for days. He said he was as familiar with his face as with that of his own father. How could they have been mistaken?" "Easily enough," said the Swami. "The men went into Mrs. Masdon's home about the same time. There is a slight resemblance in their general build, and—the wrong man came out!" "Then we have lost twelve hours," said Kananda.

"You have lost more than that," said the priest, "—opportunity. These Occidentals are singularly fraternal. It is not probable that the man you searched will let the other go unwarned."

site the divan, and struck them smartly. Almost at the same instant the heavy portieres at the other end of the room parted, and Ali's immobile face appeared between them. The servant advanced with salutations that increased in profundity as he noted the storm cloud on Kananda's brow. (To Be Continued.)

Workmen Killed in Tunnel.

The strange run of fatal railroad accidents which have taken place recently in France still continues. The other morning another terrible tragedy took place near Paris which resulted in the loss of five lives. A gang of workmen was engaged on the line inside a tunnel, when a train entered. The men stopped work and stepped out of the way on to the other line. Just then another train going in the other direction also entered the tunnel. The smoke from both trains at once was so dense and the noise so great that the unfortunate workmen neither heard nor saw the approaching second train and were instantly cut to pieces.

Fast Trains in Europe.

Express speeds in Great Britain and on the continent are high. In Great Britain there are 11 daily express trains making runs from 50 to 118 1/2 miles without a stop, whose average speed is from 51 to 59.2 miles an hour. The fastest and longest no-stop run is 225 1/2 miles, from Paddington to Plymouth, made at 54.8 miles an hour. France has seven daily expresses that run from 77 1/2 to 147 1/2 miles without stop at speeds from 51.1 to 61.8 miles an hour, and there are nine French trains that run from 102 to 147 1/2 miles without stop at speeds from 50.4 to 59.3 miles an hour.—Scientific American.

The Pocahontas Delegation.

Clarence W. Watson, the new senator from West Virginia, was a delegate some time ago to a congressional convention down in his district.

Pocahontas county was represented in the convention by only one delegate. The chairman asked for a roll call on a matter that many did not understand, whereupon the lone Pocahontas delegate arose and said in all solemnity to the assembled multitude:

"Wait! The Pocahontas delegation desires to hold a consultation."—Washington Herald.

J. A. COLQUHOUN

Church Seeks to Expel Governor. Galveston, Texas.—Gov. Colquhoun of Texas has had his troubles through a mixing of politics and religion. In the recent fight over the prohibition question, he lined up with the "antib" and accepted invitations to make public speeches in the churches. Because of this his resignation has been asked for from the Methodist church of which he is a member.

The governor has declined to quit the church and refuse to be expelled, insisting that the prohibition question is not a matter of religion.

Earth Mulch. Many farmers do not know that a spade full of fresh earth put about trees, bushes or vines will protect them from mice. Clear away the grass and leaves and a minute's work will suffice to protect the tree.

UNSEATED FOR TREATING ENGLISH VOTERS.

Sir Henry Seymour King, M. P., has been unseated and returned after the judges listened to evidence which tended to show that he had been guilty of treating his constituents lavishly. This is another evidence of the high moral standard of the English House of Commons. The United States might well draw a moral from the case of Sir Henry King.
